The power of the Internet in leveling the playing field never ceases to amaze. Having started my career in market research at a time when online research was non-existent, it's amazing to see how months and tens of thousands dollars of research can be now be accomplished in a matter of days and as the author states "less than $100". A practical, hands-on toolkit that shows you how to use (mostly free) web resources to run a sanity check and validate the market. Highly recommended for any entrepreneur who wants to test out the next big start-up idea or a local small business.

It is more true than ever the competitive market is like a battle field. Without the necessary tools, any entrepreneurs braving into this frenzy will be ousted with nothing more than a bashed ego and a wake-up call. Naeem strategically tackles market research with multiple approaches.
